

Marketing steamroller
Hot chocolate, part of "the Mannheim lifestyle" p87

Opening Remarks

6

Groupon's snub of Google's $6 billion bid caused a sensation in the land of tech. It marks a new bubble, new hubris, or new faith in IPOs. Maybe all three. A calm look at this breathless tale

Global Economics

11

The cost of benefits

The tax deal's extension of jobless checks will raise unemployment some, but it will also boost growth

India: Unsafe at any speed p012

Behind Brazil's $985 iPads p13

Guiding China's soft landing p14

Shades of Argentina in the euro zone's crisis p16

Tom Keene's EconoChat p16

Seven days ahead p18

Companies & Industries

21

Oprah's cable gamble

Despite the hype, the Queen of Talk's new network carries plenty of risk

The boom in big, big ships p22

A dairy giant's outlook sours p23

The globe gets warmer, and business adapts p25

A new way to sell shirts p26

Pfizer's messy succession p28

Briefs p28

Politics & Policy

31

Anatomy of a trade deal

Obama teamed up with Ford, unions, and lawmakers to help cinch a pact with South Korea

A Postal Service bailout? p33

San Diego's tough-love pension proposal p34

Consumer finance watchdog Warren woos state AGs p35

Facebook's friends in D.C. p36

Her OWN

Will viewers follow Oprah to cable? p21

Technology

39

My stuff is your stuff

Online rental markets let people wring value from cars, tools, or anything else they aren't using

China's handset makers are gaining on the global giants p40

Getting Grandma to text p41

Apple quietly makes a pitch to businesses p42

A helmet that could help cut football concussions p44

Markets & Finance

47

Carlyle's comeback

Seeing an improving economy, the firm is making deals again and considering an IPO

A bookkeeping brouhaha p48

Who's bullish on stocks p49

Australia's apartment king p50

Investments meant for the wealthy are burning retirees p51

Charlie Rose/David Einhorn p52

Bid & Ask: The week's deals p54

Rare breed Africa's black rhino population fell to below 2,500 by 1992

Features

60

The Colossus of Wall Street

BlackRock controls more money than Germany has GDP, but few beyond Wall Street understand its influence. CEO Larry Fink aims to change that p60

The Sacrifice

In Africa, hunters are paying $150,000 to kill a black rhino—legally. Why conservationists are embracing the notion that this may help save the species p68

Welcome to the Hotel Long Shot

Can service and style triumph over a financial crisis? An inside look at New York's Eventi, a $600 million bet that the answer is yes p76

Etc.

87

Steamrolling Christmas

How kitschy New Age group Mannheim Steamroller became the kings of holiday music, topping even Elvis

Branding Like many sports traditions, college football's bowl season keeps getting bigger—and sillier. Ready for the Beef 'O' Brady's Bowl? p90

Hands On Tech gadgets for the most persnickety people on your holiday list p92

Next Life A former real estate lawyer whips up cupcakes for men p94

Consuming The price on that Cartier (or even Rolex) watch may be negotiable p96

The Stack From $35,000 commodes to getting safaris expensed, the leaders of Merrill Lynch and BofA had a lot on their minds as the economy spiraled down p98

Hard Choices Vernon Hill on taking his banking business model to London p100