

A peaceful Halloween
How Madison, Wis., stopped the annual mayhem p84

Opening Remarks

6

Timothy Geithner has dusted off John Maynard Keynes' 70-year-old cure for trade imbalances, a reminder of how much the fortunes of the U.S., now the world's largest debtor, have changed

Global Economics

11

China by the numbers

Government officials and foreign investors are eager for insights from China's sixth national census

Japan's samurai role model	p12
Obama's Mumbai mission	p13
Emerging-market bubble?	p14
Tom Keene's EconoChat	p15
Bank lending thaws. Slowly	p16
Seven days ahead	p16
A Charlie Rose roundtable	p18

Companies & Industries

21

A Conan blimp? Sure

Fusty cable network TBS is embracing quirk, and the Web, in an all-out push to market its new star

In China's Ikea stores, it's O.K. to stop in just for a nap	p22
Fresh food for city folk	p23
Under Armour's daring half-court shot at shoes	p24
Guns misfire for Cerberus	p25
Briefs	p26

Politics & Policy

29

Insider in an outsider year

A focus on jobs has Rob Portman, a favorite of the business community, leading Ohio's Senate race

G-20: How much trade clout will the U.S. have in Seoul?	p31
A new U.S. agency will go after every drop of oil revenue	p32
State ballot measures to watch on Nov. 2	p34

No Tea today
Portman is a dealmaker p29

Technology

37

HTC: No-name no more

From nearly unknown to leader in Android, the only part of the mobile market growing faster than iPhone

Why your credit card may not be accepted in Europe	p38
Nintendo goes hard core	p39
Can a fresh coat of paint bring the cool back to MySpace?	p42
Designing online games to change off-line behavior	p44

Markets & Finance

47

Sunny side of The Street

Despite the current gloom, market gains and strong earnings may point to faster growth in 2011

Teaching lawyers how to fight foreclosures	p48
Money manager Jack Meyer stays hot after Harvard	p51
Banks could be looking at a decade of anemic growth	p51
Bid & Ask: The week's deals	p52

Your name here NASA wants private industry to use Kennedy Space Center

Features

54

Coca-Cola's Last Round

The developed world just can't drink more Coke. India and China are crowded with competitors. That leaves one great unquenched thirst: Africa p54

The Ultimate Buzz Kill

For small marijuana growers in Northern California's Humboldt County, legalization could be the worst thing that ever happened to their business p62

Lost in Space

After next year's final Shuttle flight, NASA will rely on private industry for manned missions. What happens when you outsource the astronaut business? p66

Etc.

75

The Office-Bully Mogul

How Gary Namie tapped into worker fear and dissatisfaction to build a touchy-feely empire

Food The next açai berry-like superfood might come from a Canadian lab	p78
Hands On Windows Phone 7 may not be good enough to overcome its late start	p80
Wealth A look at the actively managed funds that shepherd the most 401(k) dollars	p82
Branding Madison, Wis., ends its Halloween party mayhem by taking it corporate	p84
The Stack Whether clever or cuckoo, Glenn Beck is raving all the way to a fortune. Christopher Buckley reviews Dana Milbank's book on the Fox News phenom	p86
Hard Choices Sirius XM's Mel Karmazin on learning to manage, going with his gut, and picking who would stay and who would go after the satellite radio merger	p88