

Heh Heh Heh
How MTV held pop culture hostage p130

Opening Remarks

14

China will inevitably pass the U.S. as the world's biggest economy. Should Americans worry?

Bloomberg View Pricey programs the military can live without; in defense of Obamacare p16

Global Economics

19

Working stiffs

Take-home pay has fallen. Food and fuel prices crimp budgets. Work ain't what it used to be

Farmland: The next bubble? p20

Germany may be stalling p21

The post-Chávez picture p22

Recovery in the U.S. p25

Tom Keene's EconoChat p25

Seven days ahead p26

Companies & Industries

29

A deeper Dish Network

Charlie Ergen is spending big to turn the pay-TV service into a rival to Netflix and cable giants

Shipbuilding: One market China hasn't cracked p30

Rural Pakistanis cotton to consumer goods p31

Jim Beam chases women p32

Briefs p35

Politics & Policy

37

For Obama, populist peril

While a leftward tack for the President might appeal to protesters, it's likely to leave a lot of voters cold

Some Palestinians face a less arduous Israeli checkpoint p38

The youngsters running the Treasury Dept. p40

The Supreme Court's politically supercharged docket p42

Technology

44

The race for the case

The iPhone 4S launch highlights what smart-phone case makers will do to scoop the competition

HP keeps slipping in Asia p46

It's beginning to look a lot like mayhem for game makers p47

Hackable cars p47

Innovator: David Auerbach's sanitary toilets for Nairobi p50

Markets & Finance

53

Banking's undertaker

If one of the 22 biggest U.S. banks should run into big trouble, James Wigand will wind it down

A forecaster's life after jail p55

Epic housing bargains p56

What's hurting money funds p56

Banks' changing fees p58

Demanding dividends p60

Bid & Ask: The week's deals p60

Focus On Energy

65

Where solar shines

As prices for panels drop, developers are ditching plans for expensive solar thermal plants

A shortage of coal miners p66

Middle East gas pains p67

Q&A: Stephen Harper p68

Losing steam? Add water p68

The Big Question: A brighter energy future for America p72

Screen Shot Forstall presents well p78

Features

78

The Sorcerer's Apprentice

Scott Forstall is either an exasperating liability or just the taskmaster Apple needs p78

Rick Perry Could Sure Use a Miracle

To rescue his campaign, he's promising to do for the U.S. what he did for Texas. Is that a threat? p86

Fix This/Education

We asked a roundtable of leaders how to take on the crisis facing schools today p96

Reinventing Recruiting

Lots of companies are downplaying résumés and identifying talent in unusual ways p106

Etc.

119

Where J.Crew Shops for Ideas

If imitation is flattery, J.Crew is almost sycophantic toward two of its trendier rivals

Multiple Choice Are you part of the 99 percent of Americans the Occupy Wall Street campers claim to represent—or one of the 1 percent? Take our quiz to find out p122

Next Life Demet Mutlu discovered that her native Turkey didn't have a decent online fashion emporium. So she started one p124

Hall of Fame Great moments in corporate nepotism p126

The Stack An oral history of MTV, from iffy upstart to pop culture colossus p130

Hard Choices Bob Lutz, the cigar-chomping car guy's car guy, on his decision to back the Chevy Volt—and his future at GM p132