

Hide bound
How to wear leather and still look professional p92

Opening Remarks

6

Hurricane Sandy violently returns climate change to our national debate

Bloomberg View Don't base your vote on a jobs number; smarter trade with China p10

Global Economics

13

Post-storm surge

The short-term economic damage from Sandy may be more than offset by a burst of rebuilding

Confucius makes a comeback in China p14
A professor's blog got Bernanke to go big p15
Japan needs "devil wives" p16
The week ahead p17

Companies & Industries

19

The war over Christmas

With the Web eating into holiday sales, brick-and-mortar stores are fighting back by getting personal

A rebooted Furby for the Facebook generation p21
Who's at the top of your holiday shopping list? You are! p22
Secrets of Santa school p24
Jingle Bells is big business p28

Bain or bane? Romney kept his business history off the campaign trail p56

Features

56

The Venture Capitalist for President

He's a number-crunching genius who really can fix mismanaged organizations. So why did Romney try to beat Obama with platitudes? p56

The Post-Apocalypse Survival Machine

Worried the End Times are upon us? A Polish-born nuclear physicist and his small band of acolytes are holed up in Missouri farm country, working on a "civilization starter kit" p64

Why the Professor Went to Prison

A University of Tennessee electrical engineer is either a martyr for academic freedom or a traitor. Either way, he faces dying behind bars p72

Etc.

87

The Storybook Ending

A downsized commodities trader makes a big bet on glitter futures, and finds himself living a fairy tale

Spin-offs The popular pumpkin latte at Starbucks was just the beginning: Get ready for pumpkin Pringles, pumpkin lotion—even pumpkin vodka p90
Office Fashion Yes, you can wear leather to work. Here's how p92
The Tube Bravo's new reality series, Start-Ups: Silicon Valley, has nothing to say about the tech scene. And as bad TV goes, it's not even much fun p94
Hard Choices Children's author R.L. Stine makes the scary leap to adult horror. He hopes his new novels bring goosebumps to fans who are all grown up p96

FEMA Fan
Christie sings the agency's praises p31

Politics & Policy

31

Doing a heckuva job

With FEMA's speedy response to Sandy, the long-beleaguered agency rescues itself

Delving into the dark art of political polling p32
Attack ads work—at least for TV stations' bottom lines p34
A write-off that shows tax reform will be no game p37

Technology

41

Why mobile ads stink

Traditional ads don't travel well, leaving marketers struggling to unlock the devices' potential

Marc Andreessen wants to annotate the entire Internet p42
Pirates turn the App Store into Treasure Island p44
Innovator: The smartphone meets the light bulb p45

Markets & Finance

47

A new payday for banks

Hungry for revenue, banks introduce short-term loans resembling those offered by storefront lenders

Selling frugal Vietnamese on luxury apartments p49
Fixing Fannie and Freddie p50
KKR's fundraising woes p51
Bid & Ask: Mickey Mouse, meet Darth Vader p52