

It's Only Rock 'n' Roll
The Rolling Stones' first half century p73

Opening Remarks

6

This summer's food price spike highlights the need to confront the costs of a warming climate

Bloomberg View Bye bye Libor; Marissa Mayer and the case for paid parental leave p8

Global Economics

11

Spanish flu

Trouble in Spain may lead to a full-fledged bailout, the pain of which will be felt in Italy

Breaking ice to get oil	p12
The youth dividend in Southeast Asia	p14
China's green activists	p15
The week ahead	p16
Charlie Rose/Vitaly Churkin	p17

Companies & Industries

19

Made in China by who?

Often unknown abroad, China's biggest brands are trying to raise their profile, and their prices in the U.S.

Sometimes the best offseason move an NFL team can make is to a different city	p21
Gap's Athleta chain strikes a copycat yoga pose	p22
Briefs: A big deal in Canada	p23

Politics & Policy

24

Crime almost pays

The agencies that should have nabbed Peregrine's CEO for stealing funds never saw a thing

Florida Governor Rick Scott makes the GOP nervous	p25
A credit-card law that works	p27
Attack ad men head for the super PACs	p28
Motown lives	p28

Tough gig
Spain's Prime Minister Rajoy p11

Technology

30

Facebook's friend finder

Naomi Gleit and the social network's growth team look overseas for the next billion users

Google Fiber: Kansas City, here it comes	p32
Your iPad connector may soon be obsolete	p32
Supercomputers for rent	p34
Paging Dr. Smartphone	p35

Markets & Finance

37

Housing Special

Even as it heals, the residential real estate market is ruled by extremes

Roadblocks to refis	p39
Private equity bets billions on foreclosures	p39
Second mortgages keep houses in limbo	p40
Housing by the numbers	p42

Brain Power Rove in the Bush era. His focus now: permanent GOP supremacy

Features

48

Karl Rove's Back, Big Time

"The architect" of George W. Bush's victories has reinvented himself as a master of campaign finance whose millions may sway the 2012 elections p48

Do-Gooder Venture Capitalists

Some Silicon Valley players are in it for the money. Others say they want to save the world. Chamath Palihapitiya swears he wants to do both p54

Whatever Happened to Jordache?

The eccentric Israeli family that sparked a denim craze in the '80s has built a billion-dollar empire in hotels and airlines. They make jeans, too p60

Etc.

67

All Aboard the Party Plane

To win over frequent fliers, Virgin America is turning to high design and a nightclub feel

Networking As Yahoo! struggles, a generation of hyper-talented alumni are making names for themselves elsewhere in Silicon Valley	p70
Crime How to protect your clearly labeled sandwich from office thieves	p72
Music For the Rolling Stones, sold-out tours and hundreds of millions in the bank have made getting old just a little bit less of a drag	p73
The Stack In Wall Street Women , Melissa Fisher looks at how women crashed the boardrooms of the incorrigible boys' club of high finance	p74
Hard Choices Former NYSE chief Kenneth Langone on standing up to Spitzer	p76