

Your ad here
For desperate marketers,
everything's a billboard p73

Opening Remarks

6

Ben Bernanke has been the most radical Fed chief ever. Should he be doing even more?

Bloomberg View Why Obama and Romney are mum on housing; a Berlusconi comeback p10

Global Economics

13

Plowing free trade under
Agriculture is a small part of Japan's economy. Yet its farmers have the clout to keep trade talks on hold

Smugglers struggle in Iran p14
The torch that sparked the European crisis p16
India in the dark p17
Tom Keene's EconoChat p17
The week ahead p18

Companies & Industries

20

Battling boycotts
The Web has made it tougher—not easier—for consumers to bully brands like Amazon

Do-gooder retailing goes mainstream p22
Merck's novel approach to a new sleeping pill: Stop the wake-up call p23
Briefs p24

Politics & Policy

26

The cliff we saw coming
The looming fiscal crisis should be no surprise. It was built into the Bush tax cuts a decade ago

Romney's Twitter nemesis p28
Boards keep a close eye on corporate campaign cash p29
Amtrak's grand plans p30
No crying in the cornfields p30
Charlie Rose/John McCain p31

Comedy's hard
Romney takes a ribbing p28

Technology

33

Chinese invasion
Hackers with ties to Beijing are breaking into some very important computers

Unleashing the Web on diseases without cures p35
A nation's libido, Googled p36
Apple and Samsung square off in San Jose p36
Innovator: Green dyeing p37

Markets & Finance

40

An insider trader talks
Lawyer Matt Kluger fed tips on 30 mergers to two partners. After 17 years his luck ran out

A peer-to-peer financing boom online in China p42
Banking's no fun anymore p43
Canada goes shopping for European assets p44
Bid & Ask: A big nuke bet p45

Under the border Patrolling the drug tunnels in Nogales, Ariz. p56

Features

48

Fix This / Cyber Security

Our panel of experts reveals ways to better protect individuals, businesses, and government from cybercrime p48

Nogales's Narco Holes

Construction is booming in the twin border towns of Nogales. Under them, to be precise. A growing web of smuggling tunnels reflects the power and ingenuity of Mexico's Sinaloa cartel p56

Deep Fried Civil War

The Christian values of Chick-fil-A's founding family have triggered a backlash. They're also the fast-food chain's secret sauce p62

Etc.

67

Physician, Calm Thyself

An anger management pioneer helps doctors deal with the pressures of the job without blowing their stacks

Behavior Office workers flock to "fast-casual" restaurants like Chipotle and Pret A Manger. How they navigate the lunch-hour assembly line says a lot about them p70
Who Is John Galt? The quest to bring Ayn Rand-style libertarianism to Germany p72
Media As marketers fight for consumer eyeballs, everything is now a billboard p73
The Stack The third novel from Daniel Suarez, the Digital Era's Tom Clancy, is a pulpy thriller with a crucial warning about drones and the dangers of technology p74
Hard Choices Former Playboy CEO Christie Hefner on how the election of Barack Obama inspired her to leave her father's company and pursue social change p76