

In the Hood
Zegna's sweatshirt, $495
and casual Friday-ready p92

Opening Remarks

4

With the threat weakening, the U.S. should rethink the billions it's spending on counterterrorism

Bloomberg View To ease the mortgage crisis, cut loan principals; the right way to bet on solar p6

Global Economics

9

Welfare, Hungarian-style
A Parliament-approved program takes people off the relief rolls and puts them in labor camps

China's one-child aftermath p10
Brazil's mysterious rate cut p11
Betting on an Irish recovery p12
Is a recession imminent? p14
Tom Keene's EconoChat p15
A lost lesson of Sept. 11 p18

Companies & Industries

21

Attack of the superweed
Rivals have a chance to sprout as weeds develop a resistance to Monsanto's best-selling herbicide

Hollywood's long march to China p23
Lululemon's pricey yoga gear is the envy of the industry p24
India: Land of the drug reps p26
Briefs p28

Politics & Policy

30

Dome sweet dome
Congress returns poised to fight about ... everything, but especially taxes and appropriations

Airport security: First the pat-down, now the chat-down p31
For some doctors, prison's a great place to be p32
Chefs vs. animal rights activists as California bans foie gras p33

Technology

37

Qualcomm wires for India
To make a splash in the No. 2 mobile market, it's lending a hand to local smartphone makers

Yahoo!, post-Carl Bartz p38
Dell's middle-market move p39
An HP calculator turns 30 p42
Another Post Office killer p42
Innovator: Carl June strikes at leukemia with HIV cells p44

Markets & Finance

47

Mutual exhaustion
In such a manic stock market, mutual fund managers have an even harder time keeping up

Anshu Jain pushes Deutsche Bank further into equities p48
Apple's unhelpful guidance p49
Foreign banks fear Korea p50
Refinancing? Get in line p51
Bid & Ask: The week's deals p52

Emerging Markets

55

Kenya's 'virtual wallets'
Cash isn't safe, and the poor lack access to banks. Enter M-PESA, allowing digital money transfers

Chinese companies are at the forefront of hydropower development in Africa p56
Pakistani women are making inroads in the workforce, though the pay gap remains wide p57

Bank Change Moynihan has slimmed BofA down and shaken up management

Features

60

Too BofA to Fail

The Countrywide mess, forced-takeover talk—can Brian Moynihan fix the bank? Can anybody? p60

Crunching the Future

Data analytics is predicting behavior—and building new businesses p70

Glenn Beck 2.0

He'll have more power at his own network than at Fox, but reeling in viewers could be a challenge p76

Reality Bites

Gen X is overworked, underrewarded, and in debt. How 33- to 46-year-olds got so shafted p84

Etc.

87

Eat Your Turkey Bolognese, Junior

Want to go out for a nice meal, but can't bear to leave the kids with a sitter? Giggles N' Hugs was made for you

Sports As new owner Comcast reviews NBC's expenditures, it may want to start with the untold millions the network pours into televising Notre Dame football p90
The One... Zegna Sport's hoodie wouldn't be out of place at the office p92
Next Life Ray Walker is happier making wine than he was at Merrill Lynch p93
The Stack Sylvia Nasar's Grand Pursuit is an intriguing, if not perfectly balanced, history of how the great economists shaped the free market p94
Hard Choices Ace Greenberg hated being forced into semi-retirement at Bear Stearns—and watching his successor blow it p96