

Bloomberg Businessweek

Contents

May 3 — May 9, 2010
Bloomberg Businessweek

Hard Choices
Domino's CEO on serving up
a slice of honesty p84

Opening Remarks

7

Don't dismiss the anger that led to Arizona's controversial illegal immigration law—the state's agony is a national failure. Here's the business case for fixing the problem

Global Economics

11

The threat from Greece
Heavy exposure to Greek debt may be just the beginning of European banks' troubles

Housing's halting recovery p12
Plenty of oil to go around p13
A job boom in Australia p14
Singapore's water power p15
Tom Keene's EconoChat p15
Recession's gravel roads p16
Q&A: Christine Lagarde p17

Companies & Industries

19

Bring on the drought
Seed makers are developing drought-resistant crops in hopes of a flood of new revenue

How death by diabetes could boost drug sales p20
A tough lie for the PGA as tournament sponsors flee p21
Germany's wind-power glut p22
BoA's history lesson p23
In Brief p23

Politics & Policy

25

U.K. Elections
A televised debate thrusts little-known Liberal Democrat Nick Clegg into the spotlight

The SEIU after Stern p26
Hints of a Goldman truce p27
Reid's immigration push p28
Tracking stimulus scams p29
A Colombian wild card p29
On hold in the Senate p30

Technology

33

Video-phones for real?
Apple's misplaced iPhone prototype has triggered new excitement over an old idea

Nokia's comeback plan p34
HP gets its hands on Palm p35
A low-power video screen p36
The Moscow VC who owns 10% of Facebook p36
The sportswriting machine p37
Mobile tech's ad man p38

Markets & Finance

41

The little guy sits it out
Despite the surge in the stock market, small investors are staying on the sidelines

The Thain Effect at CIT p42
Carlyle's push into China p44
Where have all the bond vigilantes gone? p44
Taxpayers may profit if the FDIC's bad loans rebound p45
Bid&Ask: The week's deals p46

Driver's Seat GM CEO Whitacre at this year's Detroit auto show p48

Features

48

Ed Whitacre's Battle to Save GM from Itself

He's shaken up a moribund culture and put the automaker on the road to profitability p48

Who Cares About Another $200 Million?

A former Lehman lawyer says Dick Fuld understated his compensation by hundreds of millions p56

Beautiful Impossibilities

The global real estate implosion has killed off dozens of designs by celebrity architects p60

Hardselling the Homeless

For-profit colleges are recruiting in shelters, loading poor students with debt they can't bear p64

Etc.

71

Your Office Chair Is Killing You

Perhaps you'd better stand up. Besides harming your back, sitting raises cholesterol—and mortality rates

Work Drug Coffee consumption around the globe: They're jittery in Helsinki p74
Discerning Tastes A tour of chef David Chang's taste buds p75
Wealth Money manager Steve Leuthold says bail on junk bonds, buy cleantech p76
Hands On The Sonos ZonePlayer S5: Why you need it in your living room p78
One True Thing A pocket umbrella built for style p79
Next Life Merritt Paulson, son of Hank, becomes a team player in Portland p80
The Stack Kitty Kelley swings at Oprah—and misses p82
Hard Choices Domino's CEO on confessing to cardboard pizza p84

Nick Who?
Clegg may hold the keys to 10 Downing St. p25

