

Bloomberg Businessweek Contents

Brews brother
Ray Daniels's tasty escape
from Big Pharma p70

SPECIAL SECTION:
PULLOUT SECTION:
IDEAS THAT WORK
FOR AMERICA

Opening Remarks

4

A stark choice for 2012? Not really—not so long as both sides keep borrowing

Bloomberg View Give wind power a boost; where affirmative action still matters p6

Global Economics

8

China's 'leftover ladies'
Being 30-plus and single isn't the liability it once was—in fact, many women find it empowering

Russia's bad boy of tech p9
A blackout in Greece? p10
How the games helped Portugal and Spain p11
Italy's woes hit Ferrari hard p12
The week ahead p13

Companies & Industries

14

Gotta get that Getty
The world's largest photo and video service thrives on a Web whose appetite for images is insatiable

Unilever's Magnum bar chips away at Nestlé in the U.S. p16
The shoe department is where the retail profits shine p17
Briefs: Progress at the Foxconn factory p18

Politics & Policy

20

The bipartisan who isn't
Paul Ryan makes a great show of pursuing Democratic alliances, but once he gets them...

How Allen Park, Mich., got buffaloed by Hollywood p21
College tuition: Up, up, up p22
The NRA targets mayors p23
The conventions: A viewer's guide p24

Uniter?
Ryan's bait and switch p20

Technology

27

Your eyes say yes—or no
New iris scanners can ID someone in seconds. A frequent flyer's dream, and a privacy problem

Ultrabooks: A slow start for the latest iPad rival p29
Starbucks's mobile app system gives other retailers a buzz p30
Innovator: Ben Gulak's epic snowmobile p31

Markets & Finance

32

The next Jamie Dimon
There isn't one. As the JPMorgan CEO's reputation suffers, Wall Street goes leaderless

Insurers shun sharing sites p34
Shanghai's real estate vise p35
Hedge funds fear Aug. 29 p36
Lending slows, cash rises p36
Bid & Ask: Heineken chugs an Asian beermaker p37

Tin men Bangka Island mines extend offshore. Many are unsafe and illegal

Features

48

The High Cost of Your Smartphone

On Indonesia's Bangka Island, tin miners labor under awful conditions for $5, on a good day, for the solder that binds your favorite devices. And the death rate on the job works out to about one a week p48

There's a Chaplain in My Office

More and more businesses are hiring clergy to counsel employees. But when you're working for both God and The Man, conflicts arise p58

The Skype Killers of Belarus

Founded by two Israeli army vets, Viber is challenging the 800-pound gorilla of Internet telephony from the unlikely of places p62

Etc.

67

A Wild Night at Applebee's

Family dining, sure—till the clock strikes 10. Then the volume amps up, and the target demo drifts down

Next Life Abbott Labs paid the rent for PR specialist Ray Daniels, but compare that with being the go-to guy on beer brewing p70
The Artifact Shearson Lehman's Tournament of Champions T-shirt: The last word in retro corporate chic p71
Office Envy Red Bull's headquarters are as high-energy as, well, Red Bull p72
The Screen Craig Zobel's Compliance eloquently illustrates the dangers of unquestioning servitude to higher-ups p74
Hard Choices How John Chambers kept Cisco from being another Wang Labs p76