

Pen Power
Livescribe turns handwriting
into a digital record p84

Opening Remarks

7

KKR has always stood for the Wall Street idea that "value" could be created by taking a public corporation private. What does it mean for private equity when the quintessential firm goes public?

Global Economics

13

The new Silk Road

Trade between fast-growing emerging markets may eclipse their ties with the West

Mideast nuclear power	p14
Israel: Torah or toil?	p16
Brazilians spend big in N.Y.	p17
Cooling the Swiss franc	p17
China may legalize strikes	p18
Ireland's debt sheriffs	p19
Tom Keene's EconoChat	p19

Companies & Industries

21

Sputtering in China

Inflation is squeezing consumers. Carmakers are boosting output. Only price cuts move the metal

Developing-world deals for AIDS drugs	p22
Appliances that can say what ails them over the phone	p23
Banks struggle to find qualified small business borrowers	p24
How big a fine will BP pay?	p26
In Brief	p27

Politics & Policy

28

The VC-in-Chief

Under Obama, the U.S. is spending billions on cleantech startups. Can it pull the plug on the losers?

Obama's impact on Detroit	p30
The furor over insurers and military death benefits	p31
An off-Target campaign gift	p32
The apparent hex on the House Ways & Means chair	p32

Technology

35

I want my 84 percent

Paul Ceglia, a wood-pellet fuel maker, says a 2003 document entitles him to a huge chunk of Facebook

Videoconferencing for the masses	p36
Cash, check, or smartphone	p37
Will question-asking become a big business?	p38
Bing's mobile architect	p39

Markets & Finance

41

Cerberus' gun play

With firearm sales slipping, the firm's investment in gun makers looks like a bad bet

A Chinese ratings rival	p42
Why hedge funds are wary	p43
Rothschild's China chief	p45
Charlie Rose talks to Wilbur Ross	p46
Miners merging for gold	p48
Bid & Ask: The week's deals	p49

Jobs

51

Help wanted—for now

The jump in temp workers isn't translating into permanent jobs as companies fret the future

Oil-fueled stimulus spending keeps Norway working	p52
In some industries, the long-term jobless are left behind	p53
The White House's Christina Romer on job creation	p54
Passion over paychecks	p55

Can we still afford it? Inside the great tax-cut debate

Features

56

The Bush Tax Cuts

Despite terrifying deficits, most economists now say the U.S. is too weak to let them expire p56

Is the CEO Wearing Any Clothes?

Dov Charney is American Apparel. The chain needs more than charisma and controversy to survive p62

The Education of Goldman Sachs

For-profit college operator EDMC has done well for its biggest backer. Not so for its students p66

How to Get Ahead in Vegas

Gary Loveman turned Harrah's into the world's biggest gaming company. Then came the crash, p70

Etc.

77

America's Most Exclusive Club

A select few are saying no to the cell phone, and they're making the world run on their time

Work Drug In a Starbucks world, do Folgers and Maxwell House stand a chance?	p80
One True Thing A necklace that works in the workplace	p81
Navigator The best off-peak destinations for a late summer vacation	p82
Hands On With Livescribe's smartpen your handwritten notes go digital	p84
Next Life Joseph Diaz's trip from real estate to launching a travel magazine	p85
The Stack Is the Web making the world better or worse? Yet another voice heard	p86
Hard Choices Seventh Generation co-founder Jeffrey Hollender on saying no, and then yes, to selling his wares to Wal-Mart	p88