

Opening Remarks

8

Developing countries could teach the U.S. a thing or two about narrowing the inequality gap

Bloomberg View Labor has outworn its welcome; fixing the flaws in the Cybersecurity Act p10

Global Economics

13

Bomb-bomb-bomb Iran?
Economic consequences could include a drop in U.S. growth and a $60-a-barrel leap in oil, for starters

Israel's soaring job creation p14
High gas prices' real fallout p15
Temps fill China's factories p15
Tom Keene's EconoChat p18
India's jailbirds win elections p19
Seven days ahead p20

Companies & Industries

22

Mr. Peanut's fresh start
Planters never entered the peanut butter aisle, but it couldn't resist the aroma of a $1.8 billion market

Fiat tries again in the U.S. p23
Pfizer slims down p24
Brazil zaps power thieves p25
New at your drugstore:
A male fertility test p26
Briefs p27

Politics & Policy

29

The no-budge budget
Forget fixing Medicare or shrinking the deficit—this Congress can't figure out how to fix potholes

Kill-it-and-eat-it locavores are giving cities indigestion p30
Keystone pipeline? Not on my land, say a few ranchers p32
The feds love green cars, but their own fleet runs on gas p35

Technology

37

Androids in distress
Operation Honey Stick reveals what happens when smartphones go missing. It isn't pretty

The Pulse app goes local p38
Facebook's lost millionaires p39
Speed Dial: Barrett Brown p40
Can Kinect revive Windows? p42
Innovator: Nirav Tolia p43
Charlie Rose/Mark Pincus p44

Markets & Finance

47

A lonely bull market
Stocks have effectively doubled in three years. So why are investors still so skittish?

Housing shows signs of life p48
SecondMarket sees growth in community banks p49
BlackRock breaks ranks on money funds' $1 share price p50
Bid&Ask p52

Lufthansa's Flight 455 is a networker's paradise. By Mehul Srivastava p60

The secret pleasures and pleasant surprises of flying for business. By Pico Iyer p56

Starwood values your loyalty—that's why the bling never ends. By Joshua Green p66

Mario Batali's best-ever business trip to Singapore. As told to Keenan Mayo p76

"That's the good thing about Vegas. We can make it up when we get home." By Joel Stein p78

The cream of the crop in first-class lounges, hotel gyms, mini-bars... p86

Porter Airlines makes coach a lot classier. By Andi Teran p64

Whatever you need, concierge Frank Laino can oblige. By Susan Berfield p70

The world's best hotel bar? Whichever one you're in. By Geoff Dyer p74

Infatuation, despair, regret: Hunting for the perfect carry-on. By Brendan Greeley p88

Executive, Fiat Marchionne's stateside push p23