

Catwalk-In Closet
Instant gratification for fashionistas p94

Opening Remarks

10

Thanks to economic turmoil, Karl Marx's stock is soaring. Let's not forget what he got wrong

Bloomberg View Easy pickings for the super-committee; What's needed from the ECB p12

Global Economics

15

Euro rezoning?

If Greece decides to quit the currency, things could get a lot worse for Europe—in a hurry

Texas cotton shrivels	p16
Russia's acquisition binge	p17
Portugal: Colonial revenge	p18
Less Canada-U.S. friction	p19
Tom Keene's EconoChat	p19
Seven days ahead	p20

Companies & Industries

23

The UAW's dilemma

As contract talks approach, the union decides: Jobs or salaries?

The great TV tuneout	p24
A wave of liability suits hits a medical device	p25
Luxury leather inflation	p26
J.C. Penney turns virtual fashion into actual inventory	p27

Politics & Policy

31

The confidence factor

For Obama's jobs plan to work, he'll have to overpower the nation's skepticism

The Medicare fraudbuster protecting taxpayer dollars	p32
A big-bucks fight over Detroit's border-straddling bridge	p34
Who owns Teaparty.com?
Not the Tea Party	p35
Charlie Rose/Mitt Romney	p38

Technology

41

The Web's walking dead

When Internet companies like AOL and Yahoo! stumble, they almost never recover

Google, Zagat-ed	p42
Russia's Amazon.com	p43
TLO knows all about you	p44
Bots that hack the hackers	p45
Innovator: Giving language lessons to computers	p46

Markets & Finance

49

John Paulson letdown

After a subpar year, investors wonder if the once-white-hot money manager has lost his touch

French towns collide with Swiss francs	p50
The rush to REITs	p51
Buffett's new hire	p52
Eurobanks' salary bind	p53
Bid & Ask: The week's deals	p54

Enterprise

57

Robbed at the bank

Hackers are stealing from the accounts of small businesses. Banks say it's not their problem

Small business got smaller	p58
Loaning money to merchants based on their eBay ratings	p59
Bootcamp for startups	p60
The Big Question: Innovative jobs policy	p62

Skill Set There are currently 3.2 million American job openings

Features

64

Do the Unemployed Get a Second Act?

Americans looking for employment often lack the skills they need. Retraining works. Sometimes p64

Huawei's Credibility Gap

The Chinese company's big plans for the U.S. start with a basement in Missouri p72

The Bulletproof Palestinian Stock Exchange

Known as PEX, the bourse has survived civil war and Israeli invasions p78

Battle of the Pork Rind Heavyweights

How rival producers and changing demographics made pork snacks an economic indicator p82

Etc.

89

An Ace in the Hole in Paradise

For a fee, Poker Refugees will help relocate online poker pros to a country beyond Uncle Sam's reach

Work Drug Can Brad Pitt make chewing tobacco—and spitting—safe for work?	p92
Fashion An innovative new service lets fashion slaves buy clothes and accessories as soon as they see them on the runway	p94
Next Life How Jay Godfrey went from stockbroker to dressmaker	p96
The Stack Dick Cheney's In My Time gets deconstructed by Christopher Buckley—piece by revealing piece	p98
Hard Choices DuPont CEO Ellen Kullman explains how taking an assignment others saw as “the kiss of death” led her to the company's top job	p100