

Supersizing
What the U.S. military left in Kuwait p83

Opening Remarks

6

Women are paid less than men for equal work.
But it's still hard for individuals to prove it

Bloomberg View For a fairer system, eliminate the corporate income tax p8

Global Economics

11

Mongolia's uneven boom
Its elections will be a referendum on whether mining has enriched a few at the expense of many

A greener gauge of GDP p12
Mexico: Stagnant wages p14
Tom Keene's EconoChat p16
Europe's flimsy firewall p16
The week ahead p17
Charlie Rose/Bob Zoellick p18

Companies & Industries

21

Russia beefs up
As consumer incomes rise, the country wants to revive a beef industry lost
almost a century ago

A faded Queen of the Skies p22
Diageo wants African women who can pay for their drinks p24
Getting Reebok into shape p24
Franchising's Mideast haven p25
Briefs: Facebook p26

Politics & Policy

28

Young and wageless
Facing grim job prospects, youthful voters are having second thoughts about Obama

Senate Dems serve up a pork substitute p30
The high price of sniffing out anthrax p30
Comcast's private Internet p31
Moms vs. Fruit Roll-Ups p32

Technology

34

The obsession Taking stock of the iPhone's business and cultural impact, on the fifth anniversary of its debut

Neal Stephenson's
sword-fighting startup p36
A new way to fight malware p37
Below Microsoft's Surface p38
Innovator: Bandwidth
communism p41

Markets & Finance

43

Master of the markets
Can securities chief Guo Shuqing restore investor trust in China's swooning equities?

A good time to be Queen p44
Korea's collapsing savings banks p45
A hedge fund looks for gold in the Greek crisis p46
Bid & Ask: Formula One p47

Enterprise

49

Coming home
Put off by quality woes
and piracy in China, small U.S. companies return to American factories

Eco flippers find green in foreclosed homes p51
How multilevel marketers turned aside rules to curb them p52
The lice treatment business is jumping p54

So long "The debt ceiling debacle... was the height of failure," says Snowe p72

Features

58

The New Republic of Porn

Stuart Lawley portrays his .xxx domain as a virtual red-light district that will keep the Internet safe for—and from—smut. Larry Flynt and the Family Research Council aren't amused p58

Physician, Digitize Thyself

Electronic health records improve care and cut costs. That's why the U.S. spends billions on them.
So why do they cause more agony than relief? p66

Farewell to the Swamp

Four members of Congress who've decided they've had enough of government reveal what Washington's really like p72

Etc.

83

The Other Gulf War Syndrome

The obesity epidemic in Kuwait, a result of the influx of U.S. fast food, has made it a stomach-stapling capital

Film To Rome With Love is Woody Allen's 43rd movie in as many years.
What's behind his phenomenal productivity? p86
Next Life Years of misery on Wall Street are fodder for Chris Foley's comedy p87
Fashion Looking the part by looking through the right sunglasses p88
The Stack In Overdressed, Elizabeth Cline shows how "fast fashion" moguls have created waste—both in our closets and the environment p90 Hard Choices Shimon Peres, Israel's former prime minister and current president, on improving ties with neighbors, the Arab Spring, and his life in politics p92