

Working it
Accessorizing your home office p70

Opening Remarks

6

Green default rules could be the most efficient way to promote clean energy

Bloomberg View Marco Rubio's constituency of one; the perils of temporary capital controls p8

Global Economics

11

China's bad report card
Crowded classrooms, high fees, and bribes make mainland schools anything but a communist paradise

The Falklands brace for a gusher of oil wealth p12
Dublin's tech allure p13
How euro ties have frayed p14
Massive multinationals p14
The week ahead p15

Companies & Industries

17

Get that man a beer
How an American craft beer pioneer got a second chance to make a legendary brew

India embraces online matchmaking p18
A bike reborn to be wild p19
In China, virtual girlfriends for lonely gamers p20
Briefs: A win for generics p22

Politics & Policy

24

The IRS ain't so bad
American taxes are a relative bargain vs. those of other countries. A pain-free guide to tax laws

Area codes are up for grabs p26
Cashing in on cybersecurity p26
Baffled by Obamacare p27
The L.A. mayor's race: It's all about potholes p28
Charlie Rose/David Boies p30

Technology

33

Debunking CyberBunker
It took part in a scary hack. But its self-proclaimed digital villainy may be highly exaggerated

Your own private cloud p34
How retailers exploit shoppers' smartphone obsession p35
Seeking classified profits p36
Innovator: Body-conscious remote controls p38

Markets & Finance

41

Jim the Realtor's realty TV
Five years ago, Jim Klinge's videos documented Southern California's bust. Now they tell another story

Private equity's 401(k) entree p43
High student loan rates p44
A repository for bank customers' gripes p45
Quarterly Report p47

Detroit revs up GM's Corvette Stingray and admirers p48

Features

48

The Big Three Are Back, Right?

Record sales. Record small-car profits. Record savings. Inside the improbable U.S. auto revival p48

The House That Ruthless Built

Jeffrey Loria got Florida taxpayers to fund a costly stadium, then shed the Marlins' priciest talent p52

Silicon Valley's Wannabe Obama

Can the apparatus that got the president reelected work the same magic for a complete unknown? p56

Landing Apple's Spaceship

The spectacular headquarters Steve Jobs envisioned may turn into an investor nightmare p60

Etc.

67

The Secretary Vanishes

Executive assistants are disappearing from the workforce. Is that a mistake?

Gear What you need to make your home office productive—and stylish p70
FAQ Russian oligarch Boris Berezovsky was found hanged in his home in Britain. Was it suicide or foul play? p72
Sports How Paul Rabil became lacrosse's first million-dollar man p73
Conspicuous Consumption Move over, Machiavelli. Adam Grant's Give and Take argues that selflessness is the secret to business success p74
Hard Choices Tiger Woods's agent on turning down deals and having his client back at No. 1 p76

Health reform
The deadlines are high p27