

Opening Remarks

12

Can Japan's disaster really have so little effect on the global economy? The bullish forecasts may be missing global supply-chain disruptions and 90 quadrillion becquerels of radiation

Global Economics

15

Japan's rolling blackouts

The earthquake destroyed 21,000 megawatts of generating capacity, and the impact is enormous

Portugal: One step closer to needing a bailout p16

How the World Bank is fighting AIDS in Africa by helping girls say no to "sugar daddies" p18

Charlie Rose/Lee Kwan Yew p20

Seven days ahead p22

Tom Keene's EconoChat p23

Companies & Industries

25

Sustainability turns sexy

The potential savings from green business practices are catching the business community's eye

A year after the Gulf spill, BP is enjoying a rebound p26

Aetna is challenging high out-of-network doctor bills—with lawsuits p28

Carlos Slim's big bet on Latin American Web growth p30

Briefs p32

Politics & Policy

35

A peek inside the Fed

Which banks borrowed from the discount window in the panic of '08? That was a secret—until now

How much is the no-fly zone over Libya costing the U.S.? p36

The Fed seat confirmation fight over MIT's Peter Diamond p37

The "bring your gun to work" movement gains traction p38

Technology

41

Android's new rules

Google turns disciplinarian and cracks down on the chaos of Android Land

Will Amazon's new cloud music service fly? p43

Youku.com, the YouTube of China, is going legit p44

Innovator: Eric Golden is repurposing Tinseltown tech p47

Markets & Finance

49

Goldman's little helper

Will the investment bank's lucrative Special Situations Group be put out of work by Dodd-Frank?

Canary Wharf is a success story, except for investors p50

Harry & David: Why the fruit seller kicked the basket p51

The steep challenges facing Rajaratnam's defense team p52

Banks' new 401(k) focus p53

Bid & Ask: The week's deals p54

Energy

57

Lessons from Chernobyl

What a new tomb for the nuclear power plant can teach the Japanese as they deal with Fukushima

Will Japan's crisis kick-start fossil fuel CO₂ scrubbing? p59

Speed Dial: Recycled Energy Development's Tom Casten p60

Fracking has become a dirty word in France p60

Undaunted, Abu Dhabi plans to forge ahead with nukes p62

"The Family Company" J&J's product recalls continue to mount

Features

64

Johnson & Johnson's Bitter Pills

After 50-plus recalls in 15 months—artificial hips, Motrin, Roloids, Tylenol, Zyrtec—the $60billion company is fighting for its once-trusted name p64

Baseball's Statistical Quantum Leap

A new technology will soon definitively tell fans—and managers—who can really play the game p72

Pension, or Ponzi Scheme?

How benefits for public workers became Public Enemy No. 1 p78

Tribute: Paul Baran (1926-2011)

The man who imagined the Internet—in 1960 p84

Etc.

91

The Passion of the C-List

After fading out, a wave of almost-stars is proving that religion has the power to resurrect careers

Black Tie Dress for esthetic success at this season's fundraisers p94

How To Strategies for slipping out of the office long before the whistle p96

Next Life Franz Gastler left consulting to help India's poor. Why he wound up starting a soccer league for girls instead p97

Food Chicago restaurateur Nick Kokonas—alongside star chef Grant Achatz—is about to open Next, a fine-dining establishment designed not to piss people off p98

The Stack Is organized crime spreading or just going on the lam? Federico Varese's new book explores the Mob's new low-key globalized game p100

Hard Choices Starbucks CEO Howard Schultz on the return of Howard Schultz p102