

Office mind games
The sequel to Buckyballs p77

Opening Remarks

8

The paradox of August: Forced downtime for the jobless, while others strive to power down

Bloomberg View Incentives for car buyers, not carmakers; The new HIV drug is worth it p10

Global Economics

12

Recovery—or recession?

The signs point every which way as economists debate what's going on with the U.S. economy

China may be ready to embrace its real estate boom p13

Violence halts mining p15

Tom Keene's EconoChat p16

France needs chefs—really p16

The week ahead p17

Companies & Industries

19

Killer bugs for hire

Farmers are using insects to attack crop varmints—spurring a $1.3 billion biopesticide market

Making safe school buses for China's kids p20

Guar gum—it's everywhere p22

Japan's mega-ad agency p22

Farewell to Stephen Covey, guru to management gurus p23

Politics & Policy

24

No way to fight fires

Fatal air tanker crashes raise doubts about battling burning forests from the air

The S&P downgraded U.S. credit—and no one cared p26

Under-the-table foie gras p27

Romney pitches to expats p27

Who's funding super PACs p28

Congress's sleepy year p28

Technology

30

Marissa Mayer, No. 7

Yahoo's latest choice for CEO surprised everyone. Can the Google veteran fix the troubled company?

Tapping Wi-Fi hotspots to keep data flowing p32

Huawei: From smartphone also-ran to powerhouse p33

Innovator: Joe Sumner mashes up clips to make movies p34

Markets & Finance

37

The Rothschild heir

Alexandre, 32, is positioned to succeed his father to run the $1.42 billion family bank

Those lagging hedge funds p38

Chinese companies flee U.S. stock exchanges p39

A bull market in intellectual property p40

Bid & Ask: Hair Club p41

Human Resources

43

Wellness Olympics

Companies are using online games and social media to inspire workers to get buff

Measuring the worth of a workforce to lure investors p44

HR pros size up the cost of Obamacare p45

Companies stop counting days off to recruit techies p46

Exhibit A Allred adds star power to sexual harassment claims p54

Features

48

Who's Afraid of Paul Krugman? Not Estonia

Advocates of austerity have made the tiny Baltic country their poster child. The Nobel laureate took them on—and set off a trans-Atlantic uproar

p48

'Gloria Allred on Line One'

Those are five words general counsels hate hearing, thanks to the celebrity attorney's skill at making executives pay

p54

Silicon Valley's Surgeons of Fortune

A chain of Bay Area outpatient centers is subverting the cost structure of insurers and making doctors rich

p60

Etc.

71

American Accents in British Football Clubs

What does the Red Sox empire get with Liverpool FC? A lot more fans—and a bigger stage on which to choke

Fashion The season's best polo shirts p74

Next Life Feeling fit after leaving health-care consulting p76

Desk Toys The magnetic attraction of Buckyballs expands to Buckybars p77

The Stack Want to write a best-selling business book? A look at seven habits of highly prolific self-promoters p78

Hard Choices He was "a good spy" and U.S. ambassador at large. Now Hank Crumpton applies his knowledge to consulting on markets like Afghanistan p80