

Run, DNC!
Where Charlotte's bankers will hide out p87

Opening Remarks

6

Lance Armstrong's refusal to fight doping charges is giving his business prospects a boost

Bloomberg View Getting to the bottom of Libor; What are central banks actually for? p10

Global Economics

13

The Fed's crash course
Blindsided by the financial crisis, the central bank's economists have started boning up on finance

Japan's diligent retirees p14
The hurdles facing India's finance minister p15
Drought hits the steakhouse p16
The week ahead p17

Companies & Industries

19

He's a little bit country
R&B star Lionel Richie crosses genre lines to appeal to the most lucrative music market

Abercrombie & Fitch loses its sex appeal p20
China builds lots of cars, but it can't build a winning brand p21
Google's mainland niche p22
Briefs: Box office blues p24

Politics & Policy

26

Games politicians play
Political negotiations often turn acrimonious. A game designer thinks he has the solution

The Republican Party attempts to diversify p27
GPS helps airlines stop flying blind p28
A Koch brother's land grab p29
Rose/Grover Norquist p31

Technology

32

Apple: After the verdict
The victory over Samsung may give Apple an edge in future licensing agreements

Newsreader app Flipboard's unusual ad model p33
What's hot in the Valley? Try enterprise software p35
Innovator: Rewarding shoppers with a silent signal p38

Markets & Finance

40

Skyscraper standoff
The planned IPO of the Empire State Building is meeting resistance from small stakeholders

The $13 billion battle over the value of Smith Barney p42
Asia's moguls are steering clear of private bankers p42
U.S. companies' global rise p43
Bid & Ask: The week's deals p44

Energy

47

Emerald Oil
A huge Irish offshore find may draw in major oil players and provide a needed economic boost

Robotic drilling rigs that lower the risk of worker injury are on their way p48
The technology behind shale gas is bringing hard-to-mine coal within reach p50

Team players Levy and Buccigross on the SportsCenter set p58

Features

54

The Man Who Turned His Back on Obama
Why former Democratic Congressman Artur Davis pledged his loyalty to Mitt Romney p54

ESPN Is Running Up the Score
Inside the company that rules sports p58
Plus: The smartest-spending pro teams p66

Guerrilla Marketing
A San Diego nonprofit turned the hunt for warlord Joseph Kony into a marketing sensation p68

Deadlines and Disruption
An excerpt from former Businessweek editor Stephen B. Shepard's forthcoming memoir p74

Etc.

83

Death to PowerPoint!
Microsoft's ubiquitous and soul-numbing presentation software faces a welcome rebellion

Bespoke Vintage cars with surreptitiously modern interiors p86
The Grid As the Democratic National Convention descends on Charlotte, Banktown's denizens will be forced out of their routines (while they run for cover) p87
Fashion Eyewear aficionados critique the specs of famous execs p88
The Stack Legalized reefer comes to our economic rescue in both Too High to Fail and Smoke Signals p90
Hard Choices The CEO of International Game Technology talks about stepping down from Yahoo!'s board amid accusations of résumé-padding p92