

Shell game
From monitoring portfolios to hawking oysters. p73

Opening Remarks

4

Facebook's $450 million deal with Goldman Sachs signals that insiders will get the most out of any IPO, leaving the site's 500 million friends—and every small investor—to vie for aftermarket scraps

Global Economics

6

Forecast for food prices

Bad weather pushed food higher in 2010. Increased demand and pricier oil will keep the pressure on

India's skilled-labor shortage	p8
Small biz opts for part-timers	p9
Japan: Rare earth recycling	p9
No rush to join the euro	p10
Tom Keene's EconoChat	p10
Charlie Rose/Jon Huntsman	p12
Seven days ahead	p14

Companies & Industries

16

Back to basics at Uniqlo

A move into fashion was a costly stumble for Asia's top clothier. Its billionaire owner got the message

For-profit college grads also earn a lifetime of debt	p18
Nutrisystem ads get real	p19
Playboy CEO Scott Flanders on Asia and Hef's buyout bid	p19
Tough times have been tough on image consultants	p20
Briefs	p21

Politics & Policy

23

Medicare: The easy mark

Claims-processing flaws and a lack of resources have left the $500 billion program open to scams

FTC's online privacy geek	p25
Nasdaq's stealth lobbying campaign	p26
Paying professors to retire	p27
Stimulus: The myth of the "shovel-ready" project	p28

Trust us

Moynihan must win over BofA investors. p39

Technology

31

CES: It's tablet time

Tech outfits are unveiling roughly 100 new models in Las Vegas, a sign that the tablet is the new PC

Celebrities tweet for dollars	p32
Google wants to make your smartphone a checkbook	p33
Big sound comes to PCs	p35
Atheros' $3.1 billion payday	p35
Making valuable chemicals from sawdust and cornstalks	p37

Markets & Finance

39

BofA's firefighter

A year into the job, CEO Brian Moynihan is still coping with fallout from the financial crisis

Big-name managers stick with big stocks for 2011	p40
Buyout firms: Ready to sell	p41
Brazil's consumer-credit wake-up call	p42
A market rally in Japan?	p43
Bid & Ask: The week's deals	p44

Out and about Afghans crowd Kabul's business and shopping centers

Features

46

Land of War and Opportunity

To survive, Afghanistan needs foreign investment. Can a Defense Dept. task force persuade American businesses to jump in? p46

A Collaborative History of Wikipedia

How the online "temple of the mind" became the place to go to look stuff up: A drama told in the site's open-source style p57

The Drug Trade's Latest Victim: An Entire Town

In November more than 6,000 residents of Ciudad Mier fled as drug gangs shot up the Mexican border town. A look, in pictures, at what they left behind p62

Etc.

69

Matchmaker, Matchmaker, Catch Me a Czech Or a Russian. Or a Ukrainian. A shaky economy helps the international mail-order-bride trade flourish

Hands On OnLive could one day make video game consoles obsolete	p72
Next Life A young hedge funder leaves the expense-account restaurants behind, only to return, through the kitchen, to supply them with oysters	p73
Fashion Auto-accessory mogul Jonathan Koon sets his sights on streetwear—and becoming a billionaire by the time he's 30	p74
Office Lab What we do while waiting for a flight, and what it says about us	p76
The Stack The spill of BP books has begun, just as the disaster begins to recede	p78
Hard Choices Hermitage Capital founder William Browder on how exposing corruption in Russia affected his investment strategy—and his worldview	p80