

Affairs to remember
Birthday blowouts of the rich and famous p101

Opening Remarks

9

Property rights—which tell the world who owns what—are a key reason the U.S. became so prosperous. That's why the growing foreclosure mess is much more than a simple clerical problem

Global Economics

13

Stuck in neutral

Trade won't lift the U.S. out of its deep hole. The likely path to recovery: time and technological innovation

The U.K.'s health quandary	p15
Potash's rising powers	p15
Where the yuan floats free	p17
China's long-term vision	p18
Sports teams team up	p18
Tom Keene's EconoChat	p18
Seven days ahead	p20

Companies & Industries

23

China gets into pictures

Hollywood needs cash. China needs knowhow. Is this the beginning of a beautiful friendship?

Asian carriers are looking for a few, no, lots of good pilots	p24
Lexus' shrinking U.S. lead	p26
A Norwegian newspaper profits online	p27
Few deals at the outlet mall	p28
Briefs	p30

Politics & Policy

33

The fight over pensions

Politicians have tapped into anger over unfunded public pension benefits. Unions are fighting back

Geithner goes after China	p34
Biden's tough assignment	p36
Charlie Rose/Tim Geithner	p37
Old agencies never die...	p38
Besieged by lobbyists	p39
A guide to D.C. acronyms	p40

Technology

42

Microsoft's killer app?

A hit with Windows Phone 7 would help keep the software giant at the center of computing

The Q&A website where Silicon Valley goes for answers	p44
Web-radio king Pandora wants to ride in your car	p47
A search for turkey-carving tips leads to a breakthrough in Web video search	p49

Markets & Finance

53

Wait a minute, Your Honor

Flawed filings have slowed Florida's drive to clear its huge backlog of foreclosure cases

A quest for yield drives up slow-growth phone stocks	p54
Why gold could go higher	p55
Back to the farm in Ireland	p56
What's squeezing profits at big U.S. banks	p57
Bid & Ask: The week's deals	p58

Cyber Security

61

Hackers in your handset

As smartphones are targeted, mobile is becoming a big market for security software makers

Your best network defense may be a defense contractor	p64
How the bad guys could worm their way into factories	p65
Richard Clarke on what the U.S. must do to defend against a cyberattack	p65

Army's army The ex-GOP leader chairs Tea Party booster FreedomWorks

Features

66

Why Business Doesn't Trust the Tea Party

Sarah Palin says the movement's principles are "exactly what we need for free enterprise." Executives, who prize stability, aren't so sure p66

Opportunity in the Last Place You'd Look

From Peru to Ghana to Bangladesh, astute investors like Caravel's James Harmon are taking a chance on the next wave of emerging nations p76

Harnessing Girl Power

Millions follow Alloy Entertainment's cool kids in books, films, and shows like Gossip Girl. Now Alloy is using the Web to build a teen media empire p84

Etc.

89

Etiquette for Dummies

In tough times, etiquette schools are thriving—and learning sad truths about today's young professionals

Travel An NCAA-style bracket battle to find the boutique hotels national champion	p92
Wealth A fund manager's (really) long-term strategy for idiot-proof growth	p94
Next Life An analyst from Maine leaves Wall Street for a New York lobster shack	p96
Branding All those jokes about big hair, the mafia, and Snooki? New Jersey is getting the last laugh by using them as a marketing tool. Other states are taking notice	p98
The Stack A biography of Blackstone CEO Steve Schwarzman is long on deals but short on personality. Plus: Top 5 garish birthday celebrations	p100
Hard Choices Former auto czar Steven Rattner on bailing out Chrysler and GM	p102