

Sodas vs. energy drinks
A guide to elixirs
new and old p98

Opening Remarks

6

One year since the Arab Spring, democracy is in retreat around the globe. Here's why

Bloomberg View Enforce maritime safety laws; shine more light on the dismal science p8

Global Economics

11

Greece: House of cards
Few believe the debt-laden government can make its next bond payment

| | |
|------------------------|-----|
| Egypt's Brotherhood TV | p12 |
| Wanted: Black startups | p14 |
| The MIT family tree | p15 |
| Profiting in Pyongyang | p16 |
| Tom Keene's EconoChat | p16 |
| Seven days ahead | p18 |
| Rose/Ambassador Locke | p19 |

Companies & Industries

21

Super fracking
Oil services companies are rolling out technologies to break up the earth more cheaply

| | |
|---|-----|
| Chinese consumers are driving global car design | p23 |
| What Barnes & Noble wants from a Nook spinoff | p24 |
| Molteni feeds that need for a $50,000 stove | p25 |
| Briefs: Apple's suppliers | p26 |

Politics & Policy

28

Romney ♥ IRS
The millionaire GOP front-runner is eligible for tax breaks that would make his rich friends jealous

| | |
|---|-----|
| Can Obama buck history and overhaul government? | p29 |
| Getting foreign companies to fess up to bribery | p31 |
| Gay marriage on the ballot | p32 |
| A First Lady field guide | p33 |

Technology

35

Office on your iPad
Workers are demanding productivity apps for their tablets. Startups are listening

| | |
|---|-----|
| Detecting football trauma | p36 |
| CloudFlare, the little startup that thwarts hackers | p37 |
| Vietnam's dot-com boom | p38 |
| Innovator: Own your own power plant | p39 |

Markets & Finance

41

Suze Orman, card dealer
The money guru introduces her first financial product—and vexes some fans

| | |
|--|-----|
| Dubai's brokers, Act II | p43 |
| Even with ECB help, Europe's banks are loath to lend | p44 |
| Carlyle's bid to block suits | p46 |
| Pay squeeze on the Street | p46 |
| Bid & Ask: The week's deals | p47 |

BBW 50

49

The Bloomberg Businessweek 50
Our annual look at the S&P 500's leaders reveals the surprising strength of consumer brands

| | |
|---------------------------|-----|
| No. 1? MasterCard | p49 |
| Why Chipotle is hot | p52 |
| At Biogen, focus and luck | p53 |
| Coke: Back to basics | p54 |
| Sizing up the BBW50 | p56 |

Risky rite of passage Pilgrims at a Baghdad shrine in December p64

Features

64

Under Worse Management

With the last U.S. troops gone, now—finally—is supposed to be Iraq's moment. Instead, it's on the brink of another meltdown p64

The U.S. vs. Rock 'n' Roll

Is Gibson Guitar ruthlessly exploiting rain forests, or is the legendary Nashville company a victim of gun-toting regulators gone mad? p72

The Man Who Bought North Dakota

How wildcatter Harold Hamm became the biggest winner in the biggest American oil find since Prudhoe Bay p78

Etc.

95

Are E-Cigs Cool?

Charlie Sheen does it. Lindsay Lohan e-puffs, too. The market for smokeless smokes lights up

| | |
|---|------|
| Soft Drinks Performance enhancers: Weighing sodas vs. energy drinks | p98 |
| Fashion A suit gets a crash course in the art of casual business attire | p99 |
| Hall of Fame Great moments in "reply all." Not Suitable for Work applies not only to dirty pictures but to e-mail, too | p100 |
| The Stack Conservative sociologist Charles Murray looks at the disintegration of America's white middle class. Is the welfare state to blame? | p102 |
| Hard Choices The family bookkeeper, South Carolina Governor Nikki Haley had her first corporate audit at 15. Mitt Romney, she says, understands business | p104 |