

Seafood run
Meet Miami's king of door-to-door cuisine p77

Opening Remarks

6

The crisis in Cyprus stems from political myopia, careless lending, and lax controls. Ring a bell?

Bloomberg View What Iraq needs now; Britain's perilous new budget p8

Global Economics

11

A free-marketer in India
Raghuram Rajan left the University of Chicago to test his theories in a turbulent market

China cranks up its coal-fired power capacity p12
Hot (and not) U.S. cities p14
Putin's $7.4 billion pal p14
Europe's workers tilt west p16
The week ahead p17

Companies & Industries

19

Big Pharma's big edge
Why hard-to-copy biotech medicines are luring major drugmakers into the generics business

Estée Lauder's M.A.C. attack p20
Toyota draws strength from the weak yen p21
The war on rats in New York p22
Briefs: Lululemon's rather revealing yoga pants p23

Politics & Policy

24

Redrawing California
When the state stopped letting congressmen draw their own districts, a lot of incumbents lost their jobs

No-bid contracts on the rise p26
The TSA gets itself into a knife fight p26
Horse meat stalemate in New Mexico p27
California's gun repo men p28

Olympic gold
Putin's friend hits pay dirt in
Sochi p14

Technology

31

E-tailer on fire
Fab.com, with its hipster-kitsch aesthetic, more than tripled its customer base in the last year

Videos you can talk to—about, say, grooming issues p32
EA's console quandary p33
Ground zero for aggregators p34
Innovator: A database to drive disease research p35

Markets & Finance

37

Accidental squealer
An adviser in Zurich inadvertently incriminates U.S. clients—to the delight of the IRS

Betting the British farm p38
How to sue JPMorgan p39
Crumbling BRIC stocks p41
The Turkish taxi play p42
Bid & Ask: Diana's dresses p43
Rose/Hank Greenberg p44

Indispensable New ways to think about the world's fresh water supply p46

Features

46

Fix This: Water

Is water the new oil? Population growth and agriculture are making it scarce in more places. Five experts debate the future of our most critical commodity p46

The Einhorn Effect

When hedge fund manager David Einhorn talks, markets listen—unless he happens to be talking about Apple p54

Paid to Lose

How the gambler behind a soccer match-fixing empire rigged more than 300 pro games and kicked off Europe's biggest-ever cheating bust p60

Etc.

77

The Man Who Would Be King Crab

Roger Duarte left investment banking to take over Miami's high-end seafood business. So far, it's working

Branding Celebrity creative directors are becoming more common. So what, exactly, does Lady Gaga do for Polaroid? p80

FAQ How white-collar fugitives survive on the lam p82

Travel Eight good reasons to leave your laptop in the overhead compartment p84

Conspicuous Consumption After 17 seasons, The Bachelor is catching its second wind. Blame the Twittersverse p86

Hard Choices Jeb Bush discusses what he calls an evolution—and others call flip-flopping—in his position on immigration reform p88