

Let the Games Begin
From office soccer champs
to NBA legends p61

Opening Remarks

4

World centers like London don't need the Olympics. Better to let striving cities host them

Bloomberg View How to slow the flow of hot money; Don't knock outsourcing p6

Global Economics

9

Redefining Pemex
Mexico's president-elect wants to open up the state-owned oil company to outside investors

Capital flees Afghanistan p10
Denmark uses negative interest rates to keep investors out p11
China seeks better data p12
Colombian rebels mine gold p13
The week ahead p14

Companies & Industries

17

Nordstrom gets edgy
The upscale retailer is teaming up with Britain's Topshop to woo more fashion-conscious women

China limits cars p18
Sony's Spidey inhabits a world without Apple p19
Trojan wars: Durex takes on the leading U.S. condom maker p20
Briefs: Detroit offers deals p21

Politics & Policy

22

You're cordially excluded
What are Barack Obama and Mitt Romney telling rich donors that the rest of us aren't allowed to hear?

The Supreme Court's contentious year ahead p24
A fight over sterilization p25
Congress's Russia problem p25
Obama's relentless critic on the left p26

Oil Change

Mexico's Peña-Nieto p9

Technology

28

Building a better battery
The story behind GE's Durathon shows the potential—and pitfalls—of battery research

Preparing for a BlackBerry apocalypse p30
Stickers that make your smartphone smarter p31
Innovator: ZeroCater, the startup that feeds startups p32

Markets & Finance

34

Lehman lives!
The storied firm has emerged from bankruptcy aiming to raise at least $53 billion to pay claims

JPMorgan's rescuer p35
A Sudanese standoff p36
Wall Street workers' bad 401(k) bet p38
Bargain BRICs p38
Bid & Ask: WellPoint p39

A new deal Friends say Groupon's CEO jokes a little less these days p48

Features

40

God's Work

Mormon theology supports the megamalls, Polynesian theme park, and media and insurance empire that further the aims of the church—and help it make billions p40

Groupon Tries to 'Get Good' at Growing Up

Known for his goofball antics, CEO Andrew Mason tries for a second act as competition intensifies and the company's stock stays in the toilet p48

Not in My Organic Vineyard

Wineries and organic farms quilt the hillsides of Colorado's North Fork Valley. Will fracking make an inroad, too? p54

Etc.

★ OLYMPIC SPECIAL ★

61

Going for Office Gold

Desk-chair soccer and trashcan basketball are among the workplace games this Olympic season

The Grid Surface-to-air missiles on top of your flat? What Londoners are putting up with—more or less—to host the 2012 Games p64
Perks Just how much are those bronze, silver, and gold medals worth? (Shhh, don't tell the athletes—that's not pure gold.) p66
Competition From a blind archer to a female Afghan boxer, subplots to follow p68
Sport Will Ann Romney's dressage horse despoil her husband's campaign trail? p70
Hard Choices How Duke's Coach K builds teamwork among Team USA superstars p72