

Feel-good food
In bad times, folks reach for the condiments p96

Opening Remarks

6

Nine years have passed since the U.S. went to war in Afghanistan, and the conflict is not going according to plan. A graphical look at the cost—in lives and in dollars—of the war

Global Economics

10

Israel's ruling families

The same surnames pop up everywhere in Israel's economy. That power worries the government

India: The Commonwealth Games expose Singh's flaws p12

China's hunt for natural gas goes unconventional p14

A rising franc brings sticker shock to Switzerland p15

Tom Keene's EconoChat p15

Seven days ahead p16

Companies & Industries

19

Stuck at the gate

American avoided bankruptcy—and now it's paying the price, with labor woes and high costs

A bitter choice for India: Water for steel or for food? p20

Burger King needs an expensive face-lift p21

Wal-Mart woos partners to boost its purchasing power p23

Toyota's big trucks tank p24

Briefs p25

Not child's play Lore and Bharara aren't afraid of Amazon

Features

62

Diaper vs. Goliath

Why does Diapers.com—which will sell 500 million nappies this year—worry Amazon? Its narrow focus creates efficiencies the Web giant can't match p62

Want to Buy a Greek Island? Enter the Labyrinth

The government is considering selling sun-soaked properties to pay down debt. The country's bureaucratic maze may make that impossible p70

Communication Breakdown

The BlackBerry still dominates in the corporate world, but the iPhone gets all the love. Amid all the noise, RIM's co-CEOs struggle to be heard p76

Etc.

89

Why Ballers Go Bust

An alarming number of star athletes end up broke. Now leagues are trying to do something about it

The Decline and Fall of Business Casual Decorum is making a comeback p94

Food Banana ketchup and other new condiments are cutting the mustard p96

Wealth Nicholas Kaiser manages three mutual funds that adhere to Sharia law p98

Hands On Apple TV is now built around its ability to use your home Wi-Fi network to stream high-def movies and shows, photos, and music to your television p100

The Stack Jane Smiley confers the grace of a fine novelist on the story of John Atanasoff, the man who designed the world's first computer p101

Hard Choices Acumen Fund's Jacqueline Novogratz on choosing a career investing in Africa's future over a plum offer from the COO of Chase Manhattan Bank p104

Politics & Policy

26

Green campaigner

Terry McAuliffe's push for a clean energy empire in Virginia could be a strategy for his political comeback

A threat to high-speed rail p28

Obama wants to hit the reset button with business p29

This year it is better to give p32

Financial regulators search for risky businesses p33

Technology

35

Bad boy Ellison is back

The Oracle CEO is ridiculing rivals once again, a sign that competition is heating up

Network gripes for China's iPhone users p36

Silicon Valley takeover bait p37

Taiwan: A $1,000 iPad case? p38

Charlie Rose: Dick Costolo p39

Electronic eyeglasses p40

Markets & Finance

43

The foreclosure fiasco

Faulty paperwork may end up haunting lenders, insurers, and home buyers for years to come

A legal challenge to Ireland's banking-crisis cleanup p44

Prudential vs. AIA in Asia p45

Wall Street's pay gap p46

Profit forecasts head lower p48

Meredith Whitney, mortal p49

Bid & Ask: The week's deals p50

Alternative Energy

53

Startups' 'Valley of Death'

New cleantech companies face longer survival odds amid tight money and policy gridlock

Bringing a little Jack Welch to Abound Solar p54

Brazil's plan to ride on its steady breezes p56

Where will the wind blow? p58

Q&A: Shell's Marvin Odum p59

The perils of protectionism p60