

Bloomberg Businessweek

Contents

October 3 — October 9, 2011
Bloomberg Businessweek

Kind of Blue
A stainless steel watch with a touch of azure p112

Opening Remarks

10

Politicians may extol the virtues of small business, but big companies are still the key to growth

Bloomberg View Toward a prepackaged, well-managed bankruptcy for Greece p12

Global Economics

15

Not so nuke-free

Germany is shutting down its reactors—and buying nuclear power produced next door

Social spending in the Gulf p16

Chile's education flap p17

Getting sacked in Russia p18

Hong Kong can't raise rates p21

Tom Keene's EconoChat p21

Seven days ahead p22

Companies & Industries

25

The ESPN dilemma

Cable operators fear subscribers will defect if they pass on the costs of the sports behemoth

Emerging Bud drinkers p26

Insulin for the affluent p28

China's state tobacco industry buys goodwill p29

So many Doritos p30

Briefs p31

Politics & Policy

32

A season for spending

Indiana lawyer James Bopp's mission to unravel the nation's campaign finance laws

Detroit outsources its dead p34

Postmasters vs. Postmaster General p35

More farm profits = less support for subsidies p35

The $16 muffin p36

Exit Kudrin
Russia loses its fiscal hawk p18

Technology

39

Where's the boss?

Big tech companies are terrible at succession planning, resulting in a leadership void

Spotting fake reviews p40

The health apps arrive p41

Luxury handset maker Vertu is Nokia's jewel p42

Innovator: Matt Scullin finds power in wasted heat p44

Markets & Finance

46

Beijing opens a door

The Chinese government is about to let mainland investors buy Hong Kong-listed shares

"Difficult times" for UBS p48

Gold vaults are stuffed p48

Columbia profs' new rules p49

Tricky stable-value funds p50

Bid & Ask: The week's deals p53

Charlie Rose: Gao Xiqing p54

Fired Up Amazon's Bezos may be taking his biggest risk yet

Features

58

The Omnivore

Amazon keeps swallowing up retail sectors. Now, with the Kindle Fire, it wants a bite of Apple p58

The Trillion-Dollar Holiday

Former congressional staffers are lobbying their old bosses to give multinationals a tax break p66

Duane Reade's Miracle Makeover

Beer and sushi? Friendly clerks? The once-reviled drugstore chain's new strategy pays off p68

Russian Doll

How Anna Chapman became the face of Russian capitalism, and what that says about Russia p74

Etc.

109

A Brief History of the Ax

God sacked Satan, Jesus booted Judas, Eisner dumped Ovitz. Where does Bartz rank?

The One ... A snazzy sports watch for your blue period p112

Media Roger Ebert on why Netflix's price revamp was the right move p113

Branding Stocks, bonds, and rock 'n' roll: Duff McKagan's new gig p114

Bespoke Lingerie heaven on Paris's Rue Saint-Honoré p116

The Stack Friedman and Mandelbaum's That Used to Be Us paints a vivid picture of a lost, wobbly superpower but falls flat on how to fix America's problems p118

Hard Choices Bond guru Jeffrey Gundlach talks about being forced out at TWC Group and starting his own fund amid a lawsuit that scared clients away p120