

Hip hops
Growing a key ingredient
for craft beers p92

Opening Remarks

7

As Cleveland begs NBA megastar LeBron James to stay, the fawning highlights a problem not unique to sports: What to do when an entire enterprise is built on one extraordinary talent

Global Economics

11

Just out of reach

War and corruption may render much of Afghanistan's $1 trillion in mineral wealth worthless

Vietnam's moment. Again	p12
Pushing small biz to hire	p13
China's pull on Taiwan	p15
Afghanistan may just be trading one narcotic for another	p16
World Cup traffic snarl-ups	p18
Tom Keene/Alan Mulally	p18

Companies & Industries

20

Cleaning Up in the Gulf

While the spill slams many local businesses, a shift from tourism to cleanup has paid off for others

How recovery will challenge the UAW's incoming chief	p23
Jimmy Dean 1928-2010	p23
Cadillac's Ritzly revamp	p24
A Beijing tailwind for China's wind turbine makers	p24
In Brief	p26

Driver's seat Saab CEO Jan-Ake Jonsson and Spyker CEO Victor Muller

Features

55

The Bloomberg Businessweek 50

Our ranking of the top performers in the S&P 500, including surprise No. 1, Priceline.com, emphasizes the U.S. economy's endless ability to renew itself. Plus, Charlie Rose talks to William Shatner p55

Saab Lives! At Least for a While

After years of GM mismanagement, the odd little Swedish carmaker has a even odder new owner and two short years to turn around p73

Picking Pockets on Park Avenue?

Kenneth Star is charged with taking millions from rich clients and spending it on himself and his fourth wife. How could it have been so easy? p78

Etc.

85

The Sweet Smell of Scent Branding

The fragrance industry is helping businesses grab customers by the nose with "ambient scenting"

Work Drug A single-serve showdown for office coffee powers Keurig and Flavia	p88
Wealth Causeway Capital's Sarah Ketterer sees opportunity in Europe's crisis	p89
Travel A guide to packing the perfect bag for a four-day summer business trip	p90
Next Life A plaintiffs' lawyer leaves the courtroom for the hop fields of Oregon	p92
Hands On Sprint's new 4G network is still a work in progress	p93
The Stack Former Bear Stearns' chief Ace Greenberg writes about how he built the firm—and how Jimmy Cayne brought it down	p94
Hard Choices Future Hall of Famer Joe Torre on walking away from the Yankees	p96

Countering Obama

BP's all-star PR team p30

Politics & Policy

29

Untapped resources

The energy industry's neglect of R&D is holding back progress in safer, renewable power sources

BP's Washington insiders	p30
Funding a California revolt	p31
Obama's guide at the G-8	p32
Private equity fumes at a proposed tax hike	p33
Indiana's rising GOP star	p34

Technology

37

Dell mulls going dark

Taking his company private could allow Michael Dell to make bolder moves. But it's a pricey, uncertain cure

Building Web TVs and delivering Web content	p38
GM's green tech VC fund	p39
Chinese chips get into the supercomputing race	p40
Real work, virtual pay	p42
Intel's WiDi champion	p44

Markets & Finance

47

Fortress falls short

Newly disclosed figures show the 12-year-old private equity firm has lost $1.3 billion over its lifetime

Fraud fad: House flopping	p48
Investigating the sudden drop in Diebold stock	p49
Fund star Seth Klarman	p49
Echoes of subprime in India	p50
European banking squeeze	p51
Bid & Ask: The week's deals	p52