

Route of the Vine
Tipple-oriented trips in unexpected locales p92

Opening Remarks

7

Anger over China's undervalued currency is triggering trade war chatter in Washington. The question is: Who stands to suffer the most if the U.S. slaps tariffs on mainland exports?

Global Economics

11

Reluctant breadwinners
The recession is sending more wives to work. An anemic recovery will likely keep them there

China confronts a scary cleanup tab p12
Belarus' quixotic leader turns away from Russia p14
A rising won worries Korea p15
Tom Keene's EconoChat p15
Seven days ahead p17

Companies & Industries

19

BP's Russian evolution
For the beleaguered oil giant, its Russia joint venture—TNK-BP—is a refuge of cash and growth

A genetically altered megasalmon nears FDA approval p21
Stem cells may save Big Pharma a bundle p22
Warren Bennis on leading p22
Rubber supplies: Squeezed p24
Briefs p25

Politics & Policy

27

Obama's 2011 anxieties
With control of the House likely to slip away, the President is rethinking his team—and his agenda

Deficit hawks are threatening ethanol's future p28
Small biz and tax cuts p30
Elena Kagan's absence p31
Muni market cleanup p32
Stressed state pensions p33

Technology

35

A living YouTube wage
How Web video stars land sponsorships, cut ad deals, sell stuff, and become semi-rich

Twitter's redesign backlash p36
Was Google being evil? p37
Charlie Rose: Eric Schmidt p39
HP's printer-tablet p40
Bedbug defenses p40
Chips: A silicon substitute p41

Markets & Finance

42

Markets without brakes
Decentralized trading has lowered costs. It has also virtually eliminated the buyers of last resort

Hard times for luxury travel p44
Return of a tech dealmaker p45
U.K. bank bailouts linger p46
Charlie Munger's "let them eat cake" moment p47
Wary of Wall Street stocks p48
Bid & Ask: The week's deals p49

Enterprise

51

India? Why not Indiana?
Info tech companies in small-town America are providing an onshore alternative for outsourcers

A fast track for patents p52
Startup publishers target the high cost of textbooks p53
Social media and little guys p54
A slump in self-employment p56
Utah's startup factory p58
Open-book management p62

His number Zuckerberg wants to sell advertisers better user data p64

Features

64

What Are Friends For? Selling Ads

How Facebook plans to use its 550 million users to build the greatest advertising juggernaut since ... O.K., only since Google, but that's still huge p64

Fed Up at the Fed

Despite the weak recovery, Kansas City Fed President Thomas Hoenig is fighting near-zero interest rates—puzzling critics and colleagues p74

The Ultimate Green Driving Machine

BMW isn't abandoning its high-performance, high-horsepower roots. But it's betting big on an electric car it calls the Megacity Vehicle p80

Etc.

85

Gurus of Greed

The market veterans who helped Oliver Stone get Wall Street right for Gordon Gekko's return

The Office Lab The way you behave while riding in an elevator says a lot about you—and not all of it is good p88
Hands On Sony's PlayStation Move is designed to get serious gamers off the couch p90
Wealth Investing wisdom from "the other Oracle of Omaha," Wally Weitz p91
Navigator Forget Napa. Let the spirits move you to less familiar terrain p92
The Stack The real lesson from Michael Eisner's irony-deaf new management book: There's only room for one ego in a successful partnership p94
Hard Choices Exelon Chairman and CEO John Rowe on cutting costs, giving up coal, and staking the utility giant's future on nuclear energy p96