

For a rainy day
Boots that can pass
muster at the office p70

Opening Remarks

6

Sheryl Sandberg's book will help women be more like her but offers little for "working moms"

Bloomberg View Staying rational over record-high stocks; reining in the Pentagon's budget p8

Global Economics

11

Venezuela after Chávez

His successor will have to face up to inflation, a big budget deficit, and a decimated oil industry

The risks of sequestration p13

Green energy's high costs p14

Privacy vs. transparency in Hong Kong p14

Gun laws: The Swiss debate p15

The week ahead p16

Companies & Industries

18

Indian mass marketing

In Allahabad, 100 million are expected to attend a religious festival. It's an advertiser's dream—sort of

HBO strikes a retro chord in Russia p21

EU carmakers want to shrink. Their unions want to fight p22

Briefs: Walmart vs. Amazon p23

Charlie Rose/Rex Tillerson p24

Politics & Policy

27

Nurse, interrupted

As 30 million Americans become insured, nurse practitioners fight for the right to treat them

A tax for Canada's dirty oil? p29

An upside to traffic jams p30

The pushback against cybersecurity p30

Democrats gush over Obama's pick for budget chief p31

Markets & Finance

39

Apocalyptic investments

The smart money is looking for ways to profit from the effects of global warming

Carlos Slim's slimmer lead p41

Wonga: Proud to be a payday lender p41

Junk bonds are booming p42

Giving up on J.C. Penney p43

Bid & Ask: HSBC's debt sale p44

Technology

32

Innovation helper

Ansys has quietly cornered the growing market for simulation software

Twitter's skewed viewpoint p34

Amazon's cheap cloud p34

How an iWatch from Apple could defy the odds p35

Innovator: Hui Zhang's smoother streaming video p36

Chávez's VP
What Maduro's in for if he wins p11

Team players Disney's Iger, Lucasfilm's Kennedy, and friends p46

Features

46

May the Mouse Be With You

At 68, George Lucas was thinking about leaving his galaxy far, far behind. Meanwhile, Robert Iger wanted to secure Disney's future. How the Magic Kingdom came to own Star Wars p46

Africa's Richest Man

Billionaire Aliko Dangote made his fortune in cement and is now trying to dominate the sugar market. Is he building a new Nigeria or cashing in on its past? p52

Why Hasn't the Web Killed the Realtor?

Unlike travel agents, real estate brokers are still prevalent. Website Redfin's attempts to grab market share show just how stubborn they can be p58

Etc.

67

Laughing All the Way to the Bank

Amsterdam improv theater Boom Chicago went from "stoner idea" to thriving comic proving ground

Fashion Next time it rains, wear a boot to work that makes a splash p70

Commuting We took Goldman Sachs's new Hudson River ferries for a test drive p72

Health The typical office worker tends to sit in one of nine different—and damaging—ways. How to avoid the strain and pain p73

Conspicuous Consumption Crisis Tales, Washington spinmeister Lanny Davis's new book, gets decoded by former Obama speechwriter Jon Lovett p74

Hard Choices CNN news anchor Soledad O'Brien on being pushed out of her morning-show role at the network—and what comes next p76