

Paul Volcker

The Week in Business

- 06 | Executive Summary Retail leaps; trouble for China Mobile; crude futures keep rising; toward a cleaner Chinese power grid
- 11 | At the Table Charlie Rose talks financial reform with former Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker
- 14 | Business Outlook Mark Gilbert says the Fed's next act—crafting a return to normalcy—could be its toughest to pull off
- 15 | Numbers U.S. unemployment, now at a 26-year high, isn't likely to fall for years

New Business

- 16 | India in Ohio Municipalities and states are rolling out the red carpet for Tata, Wipro, and other subcontinent outsourcers
- 18 | How to Measure Emissions Researchers worry that inaccurate counts could have dire environmental and financial repercussions
- 20 | IPO Revival The number of deals could double in 2010, sparking a modest turnaround
- 22 | Apple's Dark Horse The iPhone gets most of the attention, but the iPod touch is soaring

Spider-Man 3: Headed for a PC near you

What's Next

- 50 | Fear of the E-Book The Kindle is a smash for Amazon—but it has petrified publishers fighting back
- 53 | MS Breakthroughs The FDA is on the brink of approving much-improved treatments for multiple sclerosis. Which drugmaker stands to benefit the most?
- 54 | Hollywood vs. Netflix Studios are wary as the company keeps seeking better deals on DVDs and video streaming
- 56 | Stephen Ross's New Gig The billionaire real estate developer is looking to snap up failed banks, with the FDIC's blessing

- 57 | Selling the Zappos Culture The shoe retailer is marketing its playful, customer-friendly model in two-day, $4,000 seminars

Personal Business

- 58 | Money Report Stocks to watch in 2010; tracking the S&P 500; yields on 10-year Treasuries
- 59 | How To Play It Fund manager Jeff Gary of Third Avenue Focused Credit Fund says there are still opportunities in distressed debt
- 60 | How Good Is Your 401(k)? With its vast, free database, researcher BrightScope could alter the retirement landscape much as Morningstar changed funds

How to get closer to "instant-on" PCs

Business Views

- 64 | Tech & You Rich Jaroslovsky on reaching instant-PC nirvana
- 66 | Books McCracken: Chief Culture Officer

- 68 | Outside Shot After instituting a round of layoffs, don't neglect to manage the survivors, says former GE human resources VP Bill Conaty

- 67 | Company Index

Bloomberg

BusinessWeek

In Depth

▲ Army Sergeant Patrick Peake earned a bachelor's degree in criminal justice while in Afghanistan

24 | What Crackdown?

The stock market has recovered. Big banks are out of danger. But has the moment for meaningful financial reform passed us by? The inside story of what happened when a troubled piece of legislation met the New Democratic Coalition

30 | China's Bubble

Apartment values are doubling on the mainland, and buyers are snapping up property even as entire new cities sit empty. It sure looks like a real estate bubble—one that could devastate China's economy

36 | A GI Bill of Goods

For-profit colleges are aggressively recruiting active-duty students, enticing them with free textbooks or laptops and promises of fast, easy diplomas. But the students may find their degrees aren't worth much in the real world

44 | Paradise Lost on Sea Island

A.W. "Bill" Jones III wanted to turn his resort on Sea Island into the Pebble Beach of the East, complete with million-dollar-plus condos. Instead, it became a cautionary tale of the perils of insider lending