

Drinking Games
Good booze is in the eye
of the beholder p85

Opening Remarks

10

It's not quite Armageddon. But premature deficit reduction could jeopardize the recovery

Bloomberg View Why the health-reform law should stand; Ireland deserves a break p12

Global Economics

15

The Reality of Austerity
Europe's troubled nations learn to live with the bitter aftermath of the boom years

Spaniards look abroad p16
Tax hikes and budget cuts stir up regional tensions p17
Greece's potato movement p18
Italian drivers' gas pains p20
Sporting Lisbon is hurting p21

Companies & Industries

23

Hertz vs. Zipcar
The No. 1 car rental company is hoping to overwhelm the hourly rental upstart

P&G's social media push p24
Wal-Mart hits the Web hard p25
Rethinking the rules on breast implants in Europe p26
NBA jerseys: Your ad here? p27
Briefs p28

Politics & Policy

31

The Secret to Mitt's Success: Harvard
Even though he knocks Obama as an elitist, Romney is the very model of an Ivy League man

Cracking suspects' phones p33
A mega-millionaire's crusade against income taxes p34
Hush-hush donor dollars p35
Charlie Rose/Daniel Yergin p36

He Went East
How Harvard shaped Romney p31

Before the patent war Jobs introducing the iPhone in 2007

Features

56

Apple's Jihad

Steve Jobs called Google's Android operating system "grand theft" and vowed to destroy it. But the legal war he started before he died could do Apple more harm than good p56

Yum's Big Game of Chicken

In China, Africa, and other emerging markets, KFC is sizzling. At home in the U.S., it's a dead brand walking. How long can that continue? p64

Made in England

A new generation of designers is trying to revive the U.K.'s moribund clothing industry—and the fashion consciousness of British men p70

Etc.

77

Jon Stewart on the Nile

Bassem Youssef is edgy, sarcastic, and funny. Now his Daily Show-inspired program is the talk of Cairo

Office Envy Boston Consulting Group's sun-drenched skybox in Dallas p80
Fitness Working out during the workday is great, if you can handle the guilt p82
Fashion The Friday makeunder p84
Branding One nation's mass-market swill is another's sublime libation p85
The Stack Amy Reading's The Mark Inside is a rollicking account of a stock swindle, and a victim bent on revenge, in an era when con artists were aces p86
Hard Choices Breaking up with a longtime business partner is hard to do. Just ask Ariel Investments' Melody Hobson p88

Technology

39

Look Out, Google
A former Google engineer is leading a team that's working to improve Facebook's search engine

Iceland, data-center hub? p41
Red Hat sees lots of green p41
Game makers prepare for online wagering p43
Innovator: Rol Tiger wants to cut your data usage p44

Markets & Finance

46

Speed the Trading
An ultrafast transatlantic cable scheduled to go online in 2013 will cater to high-frequency traders

Questions about a Green Mountain exec's stock sale p48
Tweaking target-date funds p48
Deutsche Bank's monster balance sheet p51
Bid & Ask: The week's deals p52