

CONTENTS

DECEMBER 2016 • VOL. 230 • NO. 6 • OFFICIAL JOURNAL OF THE NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC SOCIETY

DEPARTMENTS

3 QUESTIONS

Emily Briere is packing time capsules for Mars

VISIONS

EXPLORE

Lightning, Jackfruit, Field Notes, Basic Instincts

STARTALK

A Q&A with Andy Weir, author of The Martian

FEATURES

76 | THE PUTIN GENERATION

Young Russians—like those below, celebrating the school year's end—grew up after the Soviet Union fell and Vladimir Putin came to power. Where will they take their country?

By Julia Ioffe Photographs by Gerd Ludwig

30 | MIND OVER MATTER

Scientists are discovering how belief—through placebos, rituals, and mystical experiences—can affect the way we heal.

By Erik Vance
Photographs by Erika Larsen

102 | THE PARKS OF TOMORROW

America's national parks will always be beautiful, but a warming climate forces us to accept that they can't be frozen in time.

By Michelle Nijhuis
Photographs by Keith Ladzinski

56 | ORANGUTANS AT RISK

Researchers are gaining vital insights into the private lives of orangutans, but the elusive red apes face a precarious future.

By Mei White
Photographs by Tim Laman

122 | WHERE DREAMS LIVE ON

A half-abandoned research station in Tanzania is alive with the hopes and memories of those who worked there.

By Jeremy Berlin
Photographs by Evgenia Arbugaeva

On the Cover St. Catherine swoons after receiving the stigmata in this 1526 fresco by Giovanni Antonio Bazzi at the Basilica Catheriniana San Domenico in Siena, Italy. Pilgrims visit her shrine in search of cures.
Leemage/Corbis via Getty Images

Corrections and Clarifications
Go to ngm.com/corrections.