

CONTENTS

On the Cover

Wile Wennman, seven, of Nacka, Sweden, likes to fall asleep with the light on, says his father, Magnus—a photographer who's traveled the world to capture how and where people sleep.

MAGNUS WENNMAN

PROOF

8

Endangered Birds
When one-of-a-kind species are on the verge of extinction, what persuades people to save them? Maybe the right images.

BY JONATHAN BAILLIE
PHOTOGRAPHS BY
TIM FLACH

EMBARK

17

THE BIG IDEA

Are We as Awful as We Act Online?

It's not human nature that sparks mean posts and tweets. But evolution does play a role.

BY AGUSTÍN FUENTES

DATA SHEET

Earth-Friendly Transit

Transportation systems help cities stem pollution, increase livability.

BY RYAN MORRIS AND
KELSEY NOWAKOWSKI

ALSO

- Ancient Bloodsuckers
- Chilling Out on Mars
- Migration's Artifacts

EXPLORE

36

THROUGH THE LENS

An Image's Impact

They shared a photo to warn of climate threats to wildlife but the message got sidetracked.

BY CRISTINA MITTERMEIER

ATLAS

Coral Reef Loss

Rising sea surface temperatures cause coral bleaching and death at landmarks like the Great Barrier Reef.

BY LAUREN E. JAMES

ALSO

- Out of Eden Walk: Update
- Descent Into a Volcano With Sulfur Miners

NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC

HONEY
OUR WORLD

COMING TO A CITY
NEAR YOU!

HARMONY

The planet's most experience features
ers, including
of the National y music from rinstein along with inated Bleeding
rew Christie.

NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC

PHOTOARK

JOEL SARIORE

FEATURES

The Science of Sleep

Though slumber may look like an idle state, new science reveals that our brains aren't less active when we sleep—just differently active. On a good night, we'll cycle repeatedly through several sleep stages, each with distinct qualities and purpose.
 BY MICHAEL FINKEL
 PHOTOGRAPHS BY MAGNUS WENNMAN
 P. 40

Poisoning Africa

To stop predators that kill livestock, Kenya's herders put out toxic bait—and end up poisoning the ecosystem.
 BY EDWIN DOBB
 PHOTOGRAPHS BY CHARLIE HAMILTON JAMES
 P. 78

Historic Whalers

Remains of a Basque galleon shed light on whalers' life and work.
 BY FERNANDO G. BAPTISTA
 P. 102

Butterfly Catchers

Winged beauties end up on a black market.
 BY MATTHEW TEAGUE
 PHOTOGRAPHS BY EVGENIA ARBUGAeva
 P. 112

DISPATCHES

Health Care Crisis

Yemen's war makes it harder and costlier to get medical treatment.
 BY NINA STROCHLIC
 PHOTOGRAPHS BY MATTEO BASTIANELLI
 P. 134

NAT
 GEO
 TV

Subscriptions or call 1-800-6 or our subscriber you. If you prefer by calling 1-800 or mail a request

NATIONAL GEOGRAPIC TO CANADA, $51.00. RIODICALS POSTAGE CANADA, AGREEMENT PRICE $5.99. REPR. LATE 11, 2016Z MIL. 25401. SUBSCRIBER