

Camouflage-clad bush-meat hunters pose in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, site of a 1976 Ebola outbreak.

30 Stalking a Killer

The latest Ebola crisis may yield clues as to where the virus hides between outbreaks.

By David Quammen Photographs by Pete Muller

60

On a Roll

Inspired by a bold chef and fueled by social media, a global food-truck craze picks up speed.

By David Brindley
Photographs by Gerd Ludwig

76

Feeding Frenzy

At feeding time killer whales reveal not so much their appetite as their cunning.

By Virginia Morell
Photographs by Paul Nicklen

90

In Gandhi's Footsteps

Across India, the author sees where Mohandas Gandhi shaped history. But the leader's mark on modern life is less clear.

By Tom O'Neill
Photographs by Rena Effendi

112

Pluto at Last

This month a spacecraft launched in 2006 will get a close look at our solar system's former ninth planet.

By Nadia Drake
Art by Dana Berry

124 Proof | Mountain Men

They reenact the early 1800s fur-trading life and celebrate self-sufficiency.

By Jeremy Berlin Photographs by David Burnett

On the Cover In this depiction of Pluto, NASA's spacecraft New Horizons passes across the face of the dwarf planet, while its largest moon, Charon, looms in the background. Art by Dana Berry

Corrections and Clarifications Go to ngm.com/more.