

MARCH 2015
VOL. 227 • NO. 3

A 12-year-old Syrian girl holds her weeks-old sister amid the tents of a camp in Nizip, Turkey, that is home to some 11,000 refugees.

48 Fleeing Terror, Finding Refuge

During his Out of Eden Walk, the author encounters "a vast panorama of mass homelessness"—thronged of desperate refugees escaping war-torn Syria.

By Paul Salopek Photographs by John Stanmeyer

30

The Age of Disbelief

It's a phenomenon as old as Galileo. Scientists state truths and offer evidence, yet many of us remain unconvinced.

By Joel Achenbach
Photographs by Richard Barnes

72

Luminous Life

More than four-fifths of Earth's organisms known to make light live in the ocean. Their glowing existence has perks and pitfalls.

By Olivia Judson
Photographs by David Liittschwager

88

Two Cities, Two Europes

The euro crisis cast two world capitals in opposing roles—Berlin the lender, Athens the borrower—with each resenting the other.

By Adam Nicolson
Photographs by Gerd Ludwig
and Alex Majoli

122 Proof | End of the Earth

One man embraces the "polished white emptiness" of the Greenland ice sheet.

By Murray Fredericks

On the Cover U.S. moon landings: real, or fabricated like this exhibit at Florida's Kennedy Space Center? Whether astronauts walked on the moon is one topic among science doubters. Photograph by Richard Barnes

Corrections and Clarifications Go to ngm.com/more.

OFFICIAL JOURNAL OF THE NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC SOCIETY